Details: This will be our troop's third annual five-mile hike. In 2001 and 2002 we hiked a five-mile loop on the Ice Age Trail. This year, if we can get enough details, we may try a hike from Beaver Creek Reserve to Big Falls and back. The annual hike usually attracts a lot of dads, so any of you are welcome to come along, too! It's also a good event to invite a friend to -- the hike is a great introduction to Boy Scouting, since it's more fun than a Monday night meeting, but doesn't require the commitment and packing of a weekend camping trip.

Every hiker should try to wear hiking boots with good ankle support, and two pairs of socks to diminish the chance of blisters (preferably an inner layer of polypropylene, and wool socks on the outside). Everyone should also bring a raincoat or poncho in case it gets wet, and a hat and sunscreen in case it gets sunny. And, of course, plenty of water! You can probably fit all this in a small school backpack, but if you have a large backpack, this would be a good chance to check it out on the trail.

The boys will be building a campfire for lunch, and we may also bring a couple backpacking stoves. The troop will provide lunch for any dads who come, if you let us know ahead of time (bring your own bowl/plate and utensils).

Retain the above information and return the form below with any money by Monday, March 31, 2003.
